

Profile: Stacey Hefner
Project Manager

Stacey Hefner has spent the majority of her professional career in the safety and health field.

With a background in Communication and Training, she has combined her skills to assist people and organizations in creating a safe and healthy work environment.

Stacey is passionate about making a difference in this world and is excited to now be leading efforts through the Practicing Perfection Institute, where she can contribute to the vision of Event-free, world-wide- one life at a time.

During her 15 year career, Stacey has held several positions in the safety field including; Workers Compensation Coordinator, Safety Specialist, Training Specialist and Safety Manager.

Her primary skills, and areas of specialty, include curriculum development, incident investigation and research, safety training and technical writing. She is also an effective analyst of operational and safety risk and has ten years of experience with OSHA compliance of Manufacturing and Construction standards.

Stacey developed a love for the PPI processes as client of the institute in 2006. She jumped at the opportunity to become part of the team in the summer of 2008, and is currently working as a Project Manager with the Institute.

Her recent works and publications include:

- Practicing Perfection Certified, November 2006
- Practicing Perfection Mastery Training Certification, July 2006
- Published author in ASSE magazine: Learning to Effectively Communicate the Message of Safety
- Published author: Safety Focus Newsletter, Lower Colorado River Authority
- Developed Supervisor Safety Training and Performance Improvement programs, Lower Colorado River Authority
- Current member: The American Society of Safety Engineers (ASSE)
- Former member: Southwest Electrical Safety Exchange (SWESE)
- Various speaking engagements: LCRA, SWESE, Xcel Energy Group, CPS Energy Group